LIBERALS WIN 3 BY-ELECTIONS

Total of 219 candidates have been nominated on Thursday last in British Columbia's provincial election, for the 47 seats available, or an average of 4.6 candidates per seat. The Liberals have candidates in all 47 ridings, with the C.C.P. party a close second with 46. The Independents of one kind and another have 78 nominees. Total, Unionists 10, The United Farmers 26, Communists 26, and 5 independent C.C.P. candidates. In the field the Socialists have 4 standard bearers, Labor 3 and Independent Labor 2. Of the large number of Independents, the Independent Unionists have 35. Four straight Conservatives are running, two in Victoria and two in Vancouver.

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt on Monday announced the creation of a government market for gold and an easing of the gold embargo in telling the United States of his recovery policies with a firm assertion that "we are on the way to recovery." According to the recovery program, the President named the "champions" of the national recovery administration: assured an increase in agricultural prices with the words "we cannot do it in one way, we will do it in many ways"; created a minimum wage; government credit and "sound currency"; and announced the dollar would be revalued after a restoration of the price level.

Mr. Roosevelt put the operation of the government market for newly minted gold under the administration of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, whose chief function in mind in view, he disclosed, "will also buy or sell gold in the world market. This is a policy and not an expedient. It is not to be used merely to offset a temporary fall in prices."

Three more seats in the Federal House of Commons will be held by Liberal members of the House of Commons as a result of the three by-elections held on Monday of this week. In the MacKenzie riding in Saskatchewan, J. A. MacMillan, Liberal, was elected in a four-cornered fight, with L. St. Geo.

AID PROMISED FOR SHIPPERS TO GT. BRITAIN

SASKATOON—Assisted development of the Hudson Bay route will be continued next year by the Federal government and plans are in progress already for increased trade through the port of Churchill during the 1934 shipping season.

Appreciable exports of cattle grain, lumber and other goods, probably butter and livestock products, are expected by the federal department of trade and commerce.

According to present plans the department will assist shipment of western cattle to Great Britain by arranging for the supply of a number of properly equipped vessels.

Satisfactory test of the northern seaway for this type of shipping has just been made with the arrival of 200 head of cattle in England.

In order to accomplish this, the government defrayed the cost of fitting the S.S. Brandon with cattle stock pens, even though the expenditure amounted to approximately $10,000.

To encourage more shipments of this nature next year, the department of trade and commerce hopes to be able to fit out a number of vessels as the port of Churchill next year.

Stibbs, C.C.C. second choice.

Restigouche-Mindaswaka, in New Brunswick returned J.E. Michaud, Liberal with a large majority. This seat was formerly held by Max Cormier, who was defeated by Mr. Cormier's death.

In Yarmouth, Quebec the fight was close and Anne Boucher defeated his Conservative opponent, Paul Contois by a majority of approximately 40.

Bruce Spence Dies From Gun Shot Wound

Jack Spence received word on Wednesday that his brother, Bruce, had died from a gun shot wound in the head and was left immediately for his home in Stettler.

Bruce Spence, 14 year old son of H. Spence, station agent at Stettler, left on Tuesday with his 22 rifle to shoot gophers. He was seen around noon by his brother, John, and one of his playmates who went to his assistance. The lad had a bullet wound in his head. The westbound train was due and he was rushed to the Bassano hospital, where he died on Wednesday.

IRRIGATION PLAN COSTLY

Pressing claims for construction of the irrigation "Winnipeg Project" covering Southern Alberta to meet the irrigation for the drought area of southeastern Alberta, Gorion Foster, U.P.A. member of the Legislative Assembly for Hand Hills, and H.G. McCreas of Hanna have introduced a bill in the Legislature. Mr. Charlesworth pointed out that in 1922-23 the Dominion reclamation service carried out a survey of the scheme and the report was against the project.

Mr. Charlesworth recalled that the scheme calls for a diversion of the Red Deer River to serve Berry and Bull Point creeks. The scheme would involve construction of a Red Deer River dam, 100 feet high, 100 feet wide, and 4,000 feet long, and 153 feet high as a canal 100 miles long to Sulphur Lake. These two items with the development of the lake, would make the scheme most difficult, pointed out Mr. Charlesworth.

JAS. SMITH BUYS DRAY BUSINESS

The Swine Breeders' Field Day and show of interest of the farmer. During the last two years no branch of farming has been turning better returns than hog raising. With the new preference on the part of the market for hogs in the last five years should be a good market if you have the right type of hog.

At this swine breeding field day the proper type of select bacon hog will be demonstrated alive and in Wilthite pens, as contrasted with the butcher shop, which costs more to the farmer and is worth at least $2.00 less per hog.

Dr. B.D. Sinclair, veterinarian of Alberta, Edmonton, will give a talk and demonstration on the type required in select bacon hogs, combined with good feeding quantities. He will also give a demonstration on the type of bacon hogs and sows required to produce select bacon hogs.

H. E. Wilson, Experimental Station, Lethbridge, will give a outline of the experiments on the swine breeding under way at the Experimental Station, and the Advanced Registration Policy for Purified Swine.

F. M. Baker of the Industrial and Development Commission of Canada will give a talk on the future of the hog industry in Canada since the end of the war.

Contests will be held and prizes given by Miss Rosalie Reid and Mabel Ramsey. During the evening Miss Ethel Heald, on behalf of the L.O.D.E. presented Miss Wilson with a Silver bon bon dish.

A farwell was held on Monday, October 26th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neher, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Stibbs, C.C.C. second choice to ride north to Trochu. The farewell was in the form of a surprise party and a large number of relatives gathered together for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Neher left on Wednesday for their new home in Alberta. Miss Stibbs accompanied them and will spend the winter there.

A farwell was called up at his office recently and notified that his wife had presented him with triplets. He was silent for a moment, and then bemoaned forth: "I demand a recount."

A friend said: "Mister, please give me a dime for a cup of coffee."

The Stibbs replied caustically: "Let's see the coffee."

Blanks: "That's what I want to know."

Dumb Nona—I don't see how football players get clean.

FOOLING THE FIRST FROST

Just as periods of medical examinations are more and more coming into vogue to eliminate or at least to minimize the risk of disease, so are periodic examinations of your car to be considered a wise investment. With the approach of winter your car should be checked over early enough to avoid all probability of damage to the cooling system.

The following week after a frost check the following: Add antifreeze, antifreeze for correct mixture; clean gasoline lines, bleed with air, clean gasoline filter and vacuum tank strainer; tighten pump packing nut to prevent leakage; check cylinder head nuts and tighten all clamps and hose connections; flush cooling system thoroughly; adjust generator charging rate; inspect battery and terminals; clean spark plug electrodes; clean and replace gaskets, plates, and gaskets; prevent gas leak; clean transmission tube from rear axle; transmission tube and gear case; clean and re-fill with lubricant for cold weather.

12 INCHES OF SNOW COVERS CARBON DIST'CT

General—Canada this year has had much smaller crops than usual of cereals and oats due to hot dry weather during much of the summer throughout the prairie provinces, Ontario and Quebec. Root crops generally, however, have been good to good and there has been a fine crop of apples, with yields and quality nearly topnotch. Wheat, which has been harvested, has been estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at 264,600,000 bushels, 25,177,600 acres, or an average of 10.4 bushels per acre.

The crop is the smallest since 1921, since the average for the last 15 years is 281,771,600 bushels.

The wheat crop for 1933 is estimated at 262,771,600 bushels last year. Coarse grains are a light crop also, oats in the prairie provinces being estimated at 142,500,000 bushels, against 215,726,600 bushels last year, and barley at 48,500,000 bushels compared with 43,414,000 bushels.

The wheat generally is of good quality, over 85 per cent of wheat marketable, and in the prairie provinces has earned Xu. 2 Northern or better.

In Quebec crops on the whole have been satisfactory, despite lower yields of cereals and hay. In Ontario most crops have been below normal. In the prairie provinces, however, were fairly good and the potato crop was excellent. In British Columbia crops on the whole were smaller than usual. Details follow for Alberta.

Spuds were larger than usual, and in the prairie provinces were good.

Roots, which are now more usual, are still good, and the heavy loads slide easier over the ground.

Beet sleds are a common scene on the roads this winter and the sleighing is good. Wheat is being hauled by this method, and the heavy loads slide easier over the ground.

Roads laden with snow but easy and truck traffic has been kept up. Coal trucks have continued to navigate over the west roads with their heavy loads.

Wheat, while at hand, has been good in the preparation of snow and both curling and skating in Carbon this year should get away to a good start.

British Delegate At Geneva Stands Firm On Principle Of Protection To All Minorities

With a smacking indictment of the new German conception of racial homogeneity Great Britain stoutly opposed, at Geneva, the German argument that her treatment of the Jews does not violate the provisions of the rights of minorities.

W. G. A. Ormsby-Gore, commissioner of works and British delegate in the political commission of the league, was applauded by the members as he stood to argue in anger at Dr. Froschauer von Keller, the German delegate, and declared:

"Wherever Jews have been in the course of the centuries, they have been the most loyal and helpful members of the community. They have given the Jews a sense of historical continuity throughout their dispersion, and they do form a racial minority which deserves the same fair treatment as is accorded to other loyal citizens of the nation to which they are attached."

The German argument is that the Jews in Germany are neither a racial nor linguistic minority, and that the racial minorities treaties are not applicable. Dr. Von Keller answered the British attack by insisting the league had no competence in the matter and it was a "grave problem" requiring a general trial treatment. The Germans also attacked the whole previous conception of nationalities by the new Hitler idea that a nation is an ethnic unit, regardless of whether its members are within or without its frontiers.

The British delegate bluntly rejected the Hitler argument by his words: "We accept it as our basic heretical to think of the responsibility of any government for all those in the United States who claim descent from the original Pilgrims in the Mayflower." There are 100,000,000 of us.

Great Britain herself consisted of three main races, the English, the Scottish and the Welsh, and these could be subdivided into many more, he said.

Playing what he called the German game that a state has the right to concern itself with the citizens of its race living in other countries he grew increasingly emphatic as he launched into one of the worst examples of the partitioning system delivered in an international gathering since the advent of Faschism and Hitlerism.

"Great Britain behaves firmly in a parliamentary system, and the minorities can exercise their voice to the government and all sites must be heard before laws can be enacted. Likewise Great Britain believes in the freedom of the press."

"We have always set self-government even above good government," he also declared. "Great Britain will never abdicate parliamentarianism. The equality of freedom is the cornerstone of our society."

While a German delegate told the session that some Jews had left Germany because of "their bad conditions," the German resolution was discussed by the Jewish section on a political standpoint. President Count de Wiert, of Belgium, began selection of a sub-committee to study the idea, resulting "I suppose" in view of the German attitude, "that one prefers not to be represented."

"You are right," the German replied.

Sodium Sulphate Plant

Refining Plant To Be Erected North Of Maple Creek

Immediate erection of a sodium sulphate refining plant to cost $150,000 at Inglenbright Lake, 40 miles north of Maple Creek, has been taken by the Metallics and Non-Metallics, Limited, of Toronto, it is announced.

The first unit will be in operation within the next two months and will employ approximately 30 men. Ultimately this will be increased by 50 to 60.

The initial construction work which will cost the contractors of $150,000 will be for the construction of a single unit utilizing an air expansion drying system. Ultimately the firm expects to enlarge their plant facilities to increase production.

According to T. B. Bartram, of Toronto, the sulphate depots at Inglenbright Lake are the largest property in the world, having 98.6 per cent. pure sodium.

A Handsome Surprise

Indications are that the British section of the league will have a handsomely prepared report in his next speech. This is explained by the fact that during the first half of the year revenue increased by 47%, 208,531, and expenditures decreased by 10%, 10,000. The Canadian Government is directed to what may be done in the way of economizing in hard times.—Toronto Globe.

Flour Milling Industry

Holds Place Of Third Leading Industry In Dominion

The flour milling industry in Canada is now the third leading industry with pulp and paper holding first place followed by slaughtering and meat packing.

Canadian flour mills now have a capacity of 1,000,000,000 bushels beyond the requirements of the domestic market. The home market uses only 41,750,000 bushels of wheat for its domestic flour requirements while the requirements of Canadian flour mills averaged around 67,500,000 bushels for the past two years.

The development of Canadian flour mills is largely accredited to the introduction of electrical power. Few of the big milling plants are now dependent upon steam since water-driven electrical equipment has largely supplanted that means of operation.

Flour milling is the oldest of all Canadian manufacturing industries and dates back to 1605 when the first permanent Canadian settlement was made at St. John's, Newfoundland, and Annapolis, Nova Scotia.

The substantial export business in wheat and flour from Canada had its inception during the time of the Napoleonic wars in Europe.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful companion to artist and Peasant, a struggling sculptor, left art class and fell in love. She adopted dancing as a way of life, but, failing to attract that fortune when she comes of age. They are to be married. "I'll be a ring or career" and Camilla does not want to let Peiter down when he has to leave her. Peiter is to go to an art school dance, Gia Matson, Peter's roommate, who is jealous of Peter's love for Camilla, leaves the lawn to tell her "somebody should know about Peter."

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XIII.

"Well," began Gia, exhaling the smoke of his cigarette, nobly, and turning toward Camilla. "You sure do get around. I wonder where you live with him. And I tellin' you, that Peter is not good enough for a sweet little kid like you. He has a dozen skirts after him all the time, and the men are all after him, too. There's three of them! Because he holds 'em along and makes each one think she's the berries for him. D'you know how he's payin' his way through school? On the moon, he gets from rich daddies to pay for him. He touched you for a payment yet?"

"You are despicable," Camilla said him in a deadly calm voice. "I don't believe a word you are sayin' and I refuse to let you say another."

"Oh, yeah?" his laugh was ugly. "I'll tell you what's beautiful to look at when you're mad like that. I told you I'm crazy about you, and I am. It's not good enough for you, so am I—!" and before Camilla was aware of what was happening, his arms were holding her like a vice and his mouth was on hers, and she struggled violently to free herself.

From behind them, a doubled hand struck out swiftly against the side of Gia's head and sent him sprawling upon the ground. At the same time, another and graced Camilla's shoulders and prevented her falling from the force of the blow that separated them.

"Did he hurt you?" Peter was breathing hard, with anger and exertion.

"No, but I hope you have hurt him." She was trembling, too, with anger. "I'm crazy about you, but not for what you're sayin' about you."

"I heard enough," Peter said curtly, "which doesn't matter." But I'm sorry I am responsible for introducing you to such a scoundrel."

In a second, he rounded the bend and stood above Gia, who rolled over then and put his hand tentatively to his bruised jaw. Peter sensed his best, that his victim was too young, turned atop, up to adjust his own arms and clothes, and took Camilla's own arms.

"Shall we go back to the party and forget this unfortunate affair? Glad I can out with you for your money, and you have almost lost one dance with me, so I suspected something was wrong?" He was trying to dismiss the incident and sound casual, but his voice still shook uncontrollably. "I know you wouldn't want to part the dance with me, but I have promised me."

"But, Peter, he said those terrible things about you!" She was still trembling with her own resentment.

and wondered how Peter could dismiss the thing so easily.

"But you don't believe them, darling?" he asked quietly.

"Of course not!"

"Then that's all that matters. You know there are so many people in it that there just has to be someone like that—ungrateful and jealous and malicious. But time is too precious to waste even a moment about them. Friends are, well, just friends. One. People like that just hang themselves with their own rope. He can shift for himself, as he did before I took pity on him. At least, that's one load off my mind."

"Do you mean," Camilla was incredulous, "that you have been keeping Gus?"

"Most of the time, he shrugged indifferently.

"And he could say that?" she exclaimed with dismay. "Well, this world surprises me a little more every day—but I'm not the only one, either, the world is fine. It's the people, regular hodge-podge. Interesting, though," he added thoughtfully. "Every good or bad surprise I have had has been a natural mind-set, a little bit wider and more able to cope with it in general. As Tennyson said, 'I am a part of all that I have met'."

"Oh, Peter, you're so fine yourself," she told him with loving admiration. "I am the one who is failing. I have a little bit of career and Camilla does not want to let Peiter down when he has to leave her. Peiter is to go to an art school dance, Gia Matson, Peter's roommate, who is jealous of Peter's love for Camilla, leaves the lawn to tell her "somebody should know about Peter."

The last balloon had escaped, collapsed, many of them were deflated and had dropped to the floor which was strewn with confetti, serpentine dangled limply in mid-air, and the orchestra had crooned goodnight.

He pressed her hand that was turned back to him and she wanted to go back to the supervisor. "That's because you think so, honey," he told her with characteristic modesty.

The last balloon had escaped, collapsed, many of them were deflated and had dropped to the floor which was strewn with confetti, serpentine dangled limply in mid-air, and the orchestra had crooned goodnight.

"Never that!" he protested. "But you know—"

"I know nothing about letting you take care of me, Peter, this is the day of women's freedom, you know, that men are treated to men. You don't have to take care of me, just because you love me."

"And that is just why I do want to take care of you. That is the test of a man's worth, whether or not he is a caring, considerate man to a woman. It's all right for women to be free and independent—free to escape from the guardianship of men if they so desire. But a woman in love, she goes right back to the beginning of things again: service and submission and dependence. She can't escape it. And the man who loves her in the right way, wants to do right by her, to endow her with his worldly goods. It is part of one that the rest of his colleagues had had their advance stemmed by a man."

The last straw came when the police commissioner announced he had approved the erection of 440 traffic lights at crossroads throughout the city.

Declaring that so many lights would mean that the guards would be confined to barracks forever, the commissioner took his stand in hand. First, he had furnished with maps showing how they could avoid routes in which red lights were operating, but this involved grueling calculations.

Then they began by giving 24 hours' notices of their intention to march, which smoothed away many of the difficulties.

Now they scored a final victory. In future a traffic officer will be stationed at every signal light when the guards are out marching, and the officer will have orders to disconnect the signals until the troops have passed.

Never again will His Majesty's guards be cut up.

Foot Guards Won Out

Regiment of King George Can Now Ignite Traffic Light

King George of England's proud regiment of foot guards has just won a big peace-time battle without firing a shot.

Maybe the victory will not be chalked up on the regiment's official battle-roll, but all the same the guards are very jubilant, for their commanding general says that they will not have to obey London's traffic code when the march to the capital.

The first skirmish occurred two years ago when the guards first tried to use on a big scale here, and an impatient light in Regent St. declared one of the regiment's most popular baton twirlers.

Opposition was growing in arms at that affront, not even Napoleon was able to cut up the guards, they said in effect, and they saw no reason why a little red light should be able to do it without a fight.

Then a few weeks later another battalion hit its drum major through another worker on the part of a traffic light, and the guards were comforted, that we must continually come in contact with such in our daily life.

Let us take only care that by the glance being turned inward or straining the eyes, we do not injure our eyes or services, and pass by those to whom we might have been sent on an errand straight from God—E. Charles.

Look up and not down, look forward and not back, look out and not in. The last straw came when the guards had become a mere unit of one that the rest of his colleagues had had their advance stemmed by a man."

Little Helps For This Week

"As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men."—Galatians 6:10.

I ask Thee for a thoughtful love, Through constant watching wise, To bring me joy, to bring me smiles, And to wipe the weeping eyes, And a heart at leisure with itself, To sooth and sympathize. —A. L. Waring.

Surely none are so full of cares or so poor in gifts that to them also, waiting patiently and trustfully on the grace of God, He will not give direct ministry for him, increasing according to their strength and desire. There is so much to be set right in the world, and we are not to be free and held in our comfort, that we must continually come in contact with such in our daily life. Let us only take care that by the glance being turned inward or straining the eyes, we do not injure our eyes or services, and pass by those to whom we might have been sent on an errand straight from God—E. Then they began by giving 24 hours' notices of their intention to march, which smoothed away many of the difficulties.

Now they scored a final victory. In future a traffic officer will be stationed at every signal light when the guards are out marching, and the officer will have orders to disconnect the signals until the troops have passed.

Never again will His Majesty's guards be cut up.

Of Queerest Trades

Professional Writer Of Speeches Has Office In London's Famous Strand

Entitled to a high place on the map of the queerest trades is the professional writer of speeches who occupies a sky-light office in London's famous Strand. His enterprise and originality have won him a large following, and for this his idea was first put into practice, a few years ago, he had written hundreds of speeches on the most diverse subjects. Titled and prepared lists of acts apply to him. For the past few years, however, his clients' requirements are of a more ordinary nature, and consist of demands for after-dinner speeches, and other speeches with orders to speak and similar functions. Then the writing of political speeches at times also forms a considerable part of the nimble speech-writer's activities, and on many occasions he has been called upon to write both "for" and "against" the same party and subject.

Never again will His Majesty's guards be cut up.

New Kind of Sky-Writing

Partially Frozen Smoke Makes Message

Long Period

Successful test of messages in smoke made in the sky of England it is believed that they soon will be a familiar feature of daily life. The plane introducing these messages was the first to make a test flight, and so that the pilot had to wear extremely heated suits. The intense cold at this altitude partially freezes the smoke it makes in contact with the air that makes the message last longer for longer than usual.

At 20,000 feet atmospheric disturbances are less. Night sky-writing by means of a new searchlight projector throws colored patterns on the clouds.

Queer Idea For Holiday

Young Englishmen Create Ten Days In London Motor Trip

Ideas for holidays vary. Nicholas Bonin's tastes were expressed in a long motor trip through India, Asia, North Africa and Europe, crossing the desert to the west, and only a thousand miles of water in his boat.

He is a young mines manager on leave. He has just reached London, England, and his spectrometer registers a 100 per cent. increase. He claims that he has made the same car journey over attempted over this route.

Drive Against Tipping

Do you know that the slogan is the slogan of a new organization of artists, writers and publishers in Paris. It is the start of a campaign to enforce the abolition of tips under all circumstances, and to replace them by percentages of the money collected by the employees.

Princess Mary Belles

The Princess Mary Belles of the Counties of Essex and Woodstock, has practically recovered from her recent illness, but she is debared from undertaking public engagements for another month. She recently accepted the new appointment of the British Broadcasting Corporation in London, but it was a personal visit and in no way a public ceremony.
